The Hard Way on Purpose Quotes by David Giffels

Here, uniquely, we do things the hard way on purpose. We recognize a virtue and a necessary creativity in choosing to do things that way. I once heard Jack White — a native Detroiter; one of us — say that he preferred playing plastic guitars that didn't go into tune, that the challenge was inspiring.

» The Chosen Ones: LeBron and Akron

The title comes from how Giffels describes people from the Rust Belt: "Here, uniquely, we do things the hard way on purpose. We recognize a virtue and a necessary creativity in choosing to do things that way." Such a simple concept that makes so much sense.
